Introduction

Culture is the work of a human being that is born along with the creation of man as well as a documented hereditary in accordance with periodization. Culture is born and develops and changes along with the changing times. The progress of a nation, tribe and certain areas are very determined also by the culture of a region or tribe. The culture that evolved and well-documented currently has stored with a very sleek and modern. The culture has been stored in the file in the file such as micro soft film, flash drive, as well as computer files or laptop. The multiplicity of cultures in a specific area has become one of the references in the progress of a society or nation. The culture of a region will be very important against the level of development of public health in the region [6-8]. The very culture played an important role in increasing the degree of the health of a community. The culture of the communities surrounding the areas health services must be understood by all health workers so that eventually will impact to increase the degree of health. Quality health services will have an increasing impact on the satisfaction of the public health care system.

In a study carried out by Evanny beautiful Clinics Pasundan year 2013 obtained results that 378 patients and performed survey turns out they said that as many as 87.27% expressed dissatisfaction. And the results of discussion the research recommended that clinics do the repair on the reliability, empathy and understanding of the local culture [9,10]. This is in line with research conducted by Agussalim and team of the year 2016 when measuring about self-efficacy of community health workers in the coastal areas, valleys and mountains in the province of Papua which get that about 32% said very less confident and less confident and 41% who claimed not to know anything in the Papua cultural understanding in carrying out health care and nursing to society in. These cases have an impact on the results of the health service because it talks about the culture where the language factor can will be one determinant in the success of the grant of the Ministry of health.

Based on research conducted by Arum Pratiwi and Siti Anifah years 2011 through the stages of analysis and qualitative content analysis identified the reason the behavior of pregnant women and childbirth is associated with the culture to maintain healthy individuals and families according to the perception of the family. Behavior that became pregnant is abstinence should not be crach, should not be hot and drink when parturition is not to be the many motion up to 40 days, there can be a lot of drinking. While it is recommended when pregnant including drinking jamu is healthy and when childbirth among others wear piles, sitting straight and feet meeting and drinking herbal medicine. It is so illustrating that culture contributed towards improved health of pregnant women. In progress now especially in the development of the region and globalization especially the era of ASEAN Community will require an accurate understanding will vary a culture because no doubt everything will result in cultural transactions between various regions, tribes, Nations, countries as well as transcontinental automated so that it takes the concept of transcultural [1].

Papua as a large area and is made up and the various tribes and spread in some areas of the mountains, the Valley and the beach certainly painted areas and different cultures. It would be very mi has a key role in administering health services in a community order and level of understanding of the local culture by practitioners of health services. Papua region with diverse cultures such as the local culture and the culture of the people who come at least need a concept of health services in the order of service such as hospitals and clinics. They require the service of a service that is excellent and effective communication in the context of Interprofessional Collaboration (IPC). Interprofessional Collaboration is urgently needed as part of health care and nursing is more focused in the form of teamwork among fellow health care giver with the aim of healing the client as well as the improvement of the image of Hospital.
